CONFERENCE OVERVIEW

This Regional Conference is an outgrowth of the 1990 Minority AIDS Conference, "Prevention and Beyond: A National Conference on HIV Infection and AIDS Among Racial and Ethnic Populations." The conference is regionally focused, having been designed to meet the needs of minority persons living with HIV disease/AIDS and minority community based organizations committed to serving these same populations who reside in the areas encompassed by DHHS Region III - Delaware, The District of Columbia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

This skill building conference is specifically targeted to minority community based organizations serving minority populations, minority individuals, serving minority clientele and all prevention, education and service providers engaged in minority specific efforts.

CONFERENCE GOALS:

To offer participants an opportunity to learn skills and strategies, to provide prevention, education and services to specific populations in communities of color.

To offer participants an opportunity to learn organizational skills necessary to finance, fund and manage HIV/AIDS programs.

To offer participants an opportunity to learn the art of coalition building and how to seek and sustain the support of individual, community, political, and spiritual institutions.

To identify and disseminate information on minority talent and resources.

To address the issues of minority community empowerment.

To address the growing need for Technical Assistance to Minority CBO's. The conference will offer a series of "Early Bird" workshops specifically addressing organizational management. These workshops are limited seating and require early registration.
